ARGUMENT(S)

This is in response to the Office Action dated May 3, 2012, in which the Examining Attorney refuses registration of the above identified mark under Section 2(e)(4) because she believes the mark is primarily merely a surname. The Examining Attorney also advises the Applicant to that a copy of the foreign registration is required, and informs the Applicant that it may designate a domestic representative upon whom notices of process may be served.

In order to put the application in proper form for publication, Applicant submits herewith a copy of Benelux Reg. No. 0900805, along with a translation of same. The Applicant has previously designated the undersigned attorney as the Domestic Representative.

REMARKS

With regard to the refusal of registration under Section 2(e)(4), Applicant respectfully requests that the Examining Attorney withdraw the refusal of registration as the term CASSINI is not "primarily merely as surname." In determining whether a mark is "primarily merely a surname" the Trademark Trial and Board will consider the following factors:

- (1). How rare is the use of this designation as a surname? The more rare, the less likely it is to be perceived by the public as a surname.
- (2). Does anyone connected with applicant bear this designation as a surname? If so, the more likely it is to be perceived by the public as a surname.
- (3). Does the designation have a recognized meaning as other than a surname? If so, then the designation may not be perceived as primarily merely a surname.
- (4). Does the structure and pronunciation of the designation have the look and sound of a surname? If so, then the more likely it is to be perceived by the public as a surname.
- (5). Is the word presented in a stylized format distinctive enough to create a separate nonsurname impression? If so, the stylized format may not be perceived as primarily merely a surname.

The first three of the above factors weigh heavily in favor of the Applicant. The CASSINI mark is rarely used as a surname in the United States. No one associated with the Applicant has CASSINI as a surname, and the CASSINI mark does have a clearly recognized meaning apart from its meaning as a surname, as discussed in further detail below.

The use of “Cassini” as a surname is rare in the U.S., as shown by the Examining Attorney’s “411.com” search which identified only six hundred fifty (657) birth records, 272 death records, and only 65 marriage records under the name “Cassini”. In a country of more than three hundred million (300,000,000) people, this is an insignificant number.

Applicant has supplemented the search conducted by the Examining Attorney by searching the White Pages database for New York, which found only five listings, two of whom appear to be married and share the same address. (See Exhibit B). Similarly, the Los Angeles database finds only five listings. (See Exhibit C). A further search of the website located at www.family-names.findthedata.org shows that only 256 people in this country have the surname “Cassini”. (See Exhibit D). A name this rare can hardly be considered to be recognized by the consuming public as “primarily merely a surname.”

The number of phone directory listings is apparently crucial as to whether the PTO has established a prima facie showing, as illustrated in cases finding that a term is not primarily merely a surname. J. Thomas McCarthy, McCarthy of Trademarks and Unfair Competition, § 13:30 (4th ed.). Clearly the small number of phone directory listings in two of America’s largest cities does not support the conclusion that the CASSINI mark is “primarily merely a surname”. The name is, in fact, so unusual that it is very unlikely to be regarded as primarily merely a surname in the United States.

The primary significance of the CASSINI mark to Applicant’s customers is not that of a surname but rather is a historical reference to a scientific method named the “Cassini projection”, a method used in topographic reconstruction of the earth surface. As the client’s products are used to create the first topographical reconstruction of the human cornea, the term CASSINI is a suggestive trademark when used in association with those goods. While the “Cassini projection” may not be a household term in the U.S., it is well known to the group of consumers who purchase Applicant’s highly specialized, sophisticated medical equipment. Therefore, this mark has a clearly recognized meaning apart from its occasional use as a surname. The purchasers of Applicant’s products, sophisticated eyecare professionals who are well versed in the language of corneal topography, are likely to recognize and appreciate the suggestion made by the CASSINI mark.

Finally, no owner or officer or other person associated with the Applicant entity has the surname CASSINI.

Given the relatively rare use of the term CASSINI as a surname, and given the recognized meaning of the term CASSINI as connected to the scientific method titled the “Cassini projection”, and, finally, given the fact that no person associated with the Applicant has the surname CASSINI, Applicant respectfully submits that the mark is not “primarily merely a surname.”

Accordingly, Applicant respectfully requests that the Examining Attorney withdraw the refusal of registration under Section 2(e)(4).

Response to Office Action

To the Commissioner for Trademarks:

Application serial no. 85523416 CASSINI(Standard Characters, see <http://tess2.uspto.gov/ImageAgent/ImageAgentProxy?getImage=85523416>) has been amended as follows:

ARGUMENT(S)

In response to the substantive refusal(s), please note the following:

This is in response to the Office Action dated May 3, 2012, in which the Examining Attorney refuses registration of the above identified mark under Section 2(e)(4) because she believes the mark is primarily merely a surname. The Examining Attorney also advises the Applicant to that a copy of the foreign registration is required, and informs the Applicant that it may designate a domestic representative upon whom notices of process may be served.

In order to put the application in proper form for publication, Applicant submits herewith a copy of Benelux Reg. No. 0900805, along with a translation of same. The Applicant has previously designated the undersigned attorney as the Domestic Representative.

REMARKS

With regard to the refusal of registration under Section 2(e)(4), Applicant respectfully requests that the Examining Attorney withdraw the refusal of registration as the term CASSINI is not “primarily merely as surname.” In determining whether a mark is “primarily merely a surname” the Trademark Trial and Board will consider the following factors:

- (1). How rare is the use of this designation as a surname? The more rare, the less likely it is to be perceived by the public as a surname.
- (2). Does anyone connected with applicant bear this designation as a surname? If so, the more likely it is to be perceived by the public as a surname.
- (3). Does the designation have a recognized meaning as other than a surname? If so, then the designation may not be perceived as primarily merely a surname.
- (4). Does the structure and pronunciation of the designation have the look and sound of a surname? If so, then the more likely it is to be perceived by the public as a surname.
- (5). Is the word presented in a stylized format distinctive enough to create a separate nonsurname impression? If so, the stylized format may not be perceived as primarily merely a surname.

The first three of the above factors weigh heavily in favor of the Applicant. The CASSINI mark is rarely used as a surname in the United States. No one associated with the Applicant has CASSINI as a surname, and the CASSINI mark does have a clearly recognized meaning apart from its meaning as a surname, as discussed in further detail below.

The use of “Cassini” as a surname is rare in the U.S., as shown by the Examining Attorney’s “411.com” search which identified only six hundred fifty (657) birth records, 272 death records, and only 65 marriage records under the name “Cassini”. In a country of more than three hundred million (300,000,000) people, this is an insignificant number.

Applicant has supplemented the search conducted by the Examining Attorney by searching the White Pages database for New York, which found only five listings, two of whom appear to be married and share the same address. (See Exhibit B). Similarly, the Los Angeles database finds only five listings. (See Exhibit C). A further search of the website located at www.family-names.findthedata.org shows that only 256 people in this country have the surname “Cassini”. (See Exhibit D). A name this rare can hardly be considered to be recognized by the consuming public as “primarily merely a surname.”

The number of phone directory listings is apparently crucial as to whether the PTO has established a prima facie showing, as illustrated in cases finding that a term is not primarily merely a surname. J. Thomas McCarthy, McCarthy of Trademarks and Unfair Competition, § 13:30 (4th ed.). Clearly the small number of phone directory listings in two of America’s largest cities does not support the conclusion that the CASSINI mark is “primarily merely a surname”. The name is, in fact, so unusual that it is very unlikely to be regarded as primarily merely a surname in the United States.

The primary significance of the CASSINI mark to Applicant’s customers is not that of a surname but rather is a historical reference to a scientific method named the “Cassini projection”, a method used in topographic reconstruction of the earth surface. As the client’s products are used to create the first topographical reconstruction of the human cornea, the term CASSINI is a suggestive trademark when used in association with those goods. While the “Cassini projection” may not be a household term in the U.S., it is well known to the group of consumers who purchase Applicant’s highly specialized, sophisticated medical equipment. Therefore, this mark has a clearly recognized meaning apart from its occasional use as a surname. The purchasers of Applicant’s products, sophisticated eyecare professionals who are well versed in the language of corneal topography, are likely to recognize and appreciate the suggestion made by the CASSINI mark.

Finally, no owner or officer or other person associated with the Applicant entity has the surname CASSINI.

Given the relatively rare use of the term CASSINI as a surname, and given the recognized meaning of the term CASSINI as connected to the scientific method titled the “Cassini projection”, and, finally, given the fact that no person associated with the Applicant has the surname CASSINI, Applicant respectfully submits that the mark is not “primarily merely a surname.”

Accordingly, Applicant respectfully requests that the Examining Attorney withdraw the refusal of registration under Section 2(e)(4).
